THE Nº. 231.

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

Containing the freshest Advices, Foreign and Domestic.

WEDNESDAY, February 14, 1750.

MOSCOW, October 15.

IT is reported, that the privileges of being exempt from paying the duties of the custom-house, formerly enjoyed by foreign Ministers here, and which since their suppression, were indulged to the earl of Hyndford, on the score of her Imperial majesty's particular respect for his excellency, will be entirely abolished for the future.

The news of the Ottoman Porte's having menaced our court, in case it attacked a certain power of the North, is contradicted by some advices just received from Constantinople, which positively assure, that the last declarations, made by the grand Vizir to M. Nepleuf, was couched in the most friendly terms, and which tended to promote mutual good harmony and intelligence. These dispatches have occasioned the holding of a council; and her Imperial majesty, to convince all Europe of her pacific inclinations, has sent orders for the provisional disarming of the squadrons at Cronstadt and Revel.

Genoa, Oct. 7. We hear by advices from Spain, that several recruits have arrived in several parts of that kingdom, in order to compleat the regiments belonging to his Catholic majesty, and notwithstanding all due preparations have been made there for the armament of the vessels, allotted to set sail in chace of the Barbary rovers; yet 'tis generally conjectured, that that intended expedition will be deferred til next spring, as the winter season is so far advanced.

By the same advices we are informed, that the Dey of Algiers had sent dispatches to the British court, the contents whereof import, that that arch pyrate is so far from entertaining thoughts of making any restitution to his Britannic majesty either of the money or other valuable effects, which were seized from on board the prince Frederick packet boat, that he audaciously insists, that there are several large sums due to him from the British court; and doubts not but to make good his claim thereto by the ministers whom he has sent to London, in order to lay his demands before his Britannic majesty. In the mean time, however, they are busy night and day in making preparations for their defence, in case of a descent from any of the Christian powers.

They have accordingly not long since fitted out two vessels, one of 50 and one of 60 guns; and the Algerine rovers divide their forces into several squadrons, some consisting of 40, and others of 60 Xebecks or Gallies, all well armed.

By the captains of several vessels lately arrived in this port, we are credibly informed, that they had not met with one single corsair in their passage from Antibes, or any of the parts adjacent; by advices however, lately received from Madrid, we are assured, that those audacious rovers still continue their piratical courses, and that with too great success, in the streights of Gibraltar.

Madrid, Oct. 10. A treaty is concluded between this court, that of France, and the king of Sardinia. It is purely defensive, and designed to maintain in their possession those of the contracting Powers whose dominions are situated in Italy. 'Tis agreed to comprehend in this treaty the king of the Two Sicilies, and the duke of Modena, the republic of Genoa, and the infant duke of Parma and Placentia, as well for the states which he actually possesses, as for those he may hereafter acquire; and their Catholic and most Christian majesties engage by virtue of this treaty, to furnish 30,000 men, to such as the contracting parties as shall stand in need of their assistance.

We expect daily in the ports of this kingdom the plate fleet from Vera Cruz and Carthagena, which, exclusive of fifteen millions and a half in ready money, will bring a vast quantity of rich goods, as well as several valuable presents for the court. Among these there is a silver box, containing two wonderful pearls, of which the largest weighs thirty five carats and an half, and the other thirty four carats, a gold cup, set with two hundred and thirty eight emeralds; and a box of the same precious stones unset. Our naval armaments are carried on with all the vigour imaginable.

Warsaw, Oct. 18. According to the last letters from Podolia, the pestilence has broke out in several parts of that province, particularly at Mohilow and Staragorod. To prevent its spreading farther, detachments of horse and foot have been sent towards Latoczew, with orders to let no persons nor goods, &c. come from the places infected.

Turin, Oct. 20. A courier is arrived from Madrid, with a contract of Marriage between the infanta donna Maria Antonietta and the duke of Savoy, signed by his Catholic majesty, who has granted the infanta a very considerable dowry, and moreover engages to contribute a large sum towards the extraordinary expence our sovereign will be put to on account of this marriage. The contract has been sent back to madrid with the king's ratification. The marquis de la Chetardie, now ambassador from France to this court, is arrived here. The steps taken by the king to make commerce flourish at Nice and Villafranca, have had so great success, that we hope in a little time to see them become the greatest trading ports in Italy.

Hamburgh, Oct. 21. By advices from the North we are informed, that his Swedish majesty has prohibited by an express edict all discourse or debates in his kingdom or out of it, in regard to the differences and divisions which are said to be still subsisting between the court of Stockholm, and the Russian court.

Paris, Oct. 27. According to advices from Constantinople, the Kan that lately went into the service of the grand Signior, has been sent to Dricbuker, where he has received 500 purses to pay the troops in that province; and the Porte has appointed a commissary to see that this money be not embezzled. The same advices inform us, that the Divan has taken an unprecedented step, in augmenting all the taxes by 15 per cent. in order to defray the expences of a war, which, as they pretend, the Sultan is going to engage in against the new Schah of Persia. But little credit is given to the latter part of this intelligence, because the channel through which it comes is suspicious: We rather believe that the Porte intends to encourage the Barbary pyrates to go on with their depredations, and, if a war breaks out in the North, fall upon the house of Austria, while the Tartars make a diversion on the side of the Ukrain.

M. de Larrey, minister from the states general, and M. Marselis, commissary of their high mightinesses, seem to have made a great progress in their negotiations within these three weeks, so that there is room to expect the affair will be concluded soon after the arrival of M. de Berkenrode, the new ambassador from the republic of the United Provinces. A considerable abatement has already been made in the duties of herring and other salted fish, brought into this kingdom by the Dutch; which step has been taken with a view too obvious to require an explanation.

Hague, Oct. 31. Yesterday being the anniversary of his Britannic majesty's birth day, it was celebrated here by the earl of Holderness, his majesty's minister to this republic, with a magnificence and joy equal to the grand and happy occasion. There were present his serene highness the prince of Orange, the prince of Baden Bade, the grand pensionary, the greffier, and nobles of Holland, and the presidents of the several colleges. Her royal highness the princess of Orange departed yesterday from Loo, on her journey to Leewarden, whither his serene highness the prince will soon follow.

Naples, Oct. 10. The queen happily advances in her pregnancy. The prince of Tarentum, second son of their majesties, who has been dangerously ill of the small pox, is now recovered. The coasts of this kingdom are less incommoded by the corsairs of Barbary, since the king's three men of war, and some other armed vessels, sail'd against them. Several Genoese, who are just arrived in this city with their most valuable effects, report, that it is impossible to subsist at Genoa, the government having laid such heavy taxes upon all the inhabitants, in order to re-establish the credit of the bank of St. George.

&c.

LONDON.

November 7. By the present laudable scheme of his royal highness the duke of Cumberland, in providing for all half pay officers, preferable to others, there are only two colonels on half pay.

On Saturday evening a fire broke out at a cabinet maker's in the Fleet market, which burnt part of the house, and did considerable damage before it could be extinguished.

Yesterday morning early the right hon. the lord Duncannon, one of the lords of the admiralty, going home in a chair, was stopp'd by two footpads in Old Bond street, who presented pistols to the two chairmens heads, and order'd them to stop; but the man before the chair not stopping when ordered, one of them snapp'd a pistol at him, which did not go off, and the man behind calling the watch, and lord Duncannon getting out of the chair and drawing his sword, they made off without their booty. They had handkerchiefs tied over their hats, to prevent their being known.

Yesterday a young fellow was committed to Newgate, by the sitting alderman, for robbing a coachman as he was sleeping on his box in Whitechapel, of two shillings, and a shoe and silver buckle. One of his accomplices is sent to New Prison, and has impeach'd fourteen more in that gang.

Last Sunday one Burr, a blacksmith in Whitecross street, on hearing his apprentice had defrauded him of a halfpenny, took the following method to hinder his making any farther progress; he bored a hole thro' his ear with an iron sciver, to which by a wire he fastened the halfpenny, and in that manner led him for an example thro' the neighbourhood, and even to church.

The same day Thomas Girle was committed to New Prison, by justice Withers, for cutting a man across the face near St. Luke's church in Old street. He had likewise before terribly wounded his father and mother; and with a knife had cut another man so dangerously down the belly that his bowels came out.

The following Inscription is recommended to the consideration of those gentlemen who have the direction of the monument, intended to be erected in Westminster abbey, in honour of Capt. Cornwall.

To the Memory of
Captain JAMES CORNWALL,
Commander of his Majesty's Ship the Marlborough,
Who was slain
In the Engagement with the French and Spanish Fleets, off Toulon,
February 11, 1743|4.
This Monument was erected,
At the Public Expence,
In Consequence of a Vote of the House of Commons,
Who address'd his Majesty for that Purpose.

Tho' Britain's Genius hung his drooping Head,
And mourn'd her antient Naval Glory fled;
On that fam'd Day, when France, combin'd with Spain,
Strove for the wide Dominion of the Main;
Yet, CORNWALL, all, with gen'ral Voice, agree
To pay the Tribute of Applause to thee.
When his bold Chief, in thickest Fight engag'd,
Unequal War with Spain's proud Leader wag'd;
With Indignation mov'd, he timely came
To rescue from Reproach his Country's Name:
Success too dearly did his Valour crowne,
He sav'd his Leader's Life,——and lost his own.
These Fun'ral Rites a grateful Nation pays,
That latest Times may learn the Hero's Praise:
And Chiefs, like him, shall unrepining lead,
When Senates thus reward the glorious Deed.

On Saturday a person who teaches French at Hampstead, and the villages thereabouts, was found dead in a ditch, within fifty yards of his own house at Kilburne, supposed to have been murdered.

November 9. The Rippon man of war is arrived at Portsmouth from Jamaica, with a very large sum of money on board for the use of the merchants of this city.

A large ship from Bristol for Guiney is lost on the coast of Barbary: Thirty-two of the crew are got to the Canaries.

'Tis reported that two shillings in the pound will be taken off the land tax at the approaching session, and that the exigencies of the government will make it necessary to raise as much as that reduction will amount to, by some ways or means not yet i——v——d. We wish and hope the latter part of this report may prove false.

'Tis expected that if a court martial shall be appointed to enquire into the conduct of a certain [——a c——t, the public will be entertained with an account of his generosity to the enemy in the W——st I——ies; and probably the true reason may be discovered, why a fleet of their ships was convoyed into port without taking one of them.

Boston, December 18.

By an express from the Eastward, we have an account of a most unhappy and imprudent action that happened at Wiscasset on the 2d instant, and which may prove of bad consequence to this province; viz. That six men of that place, being in the woods with their guns, came upon three Indians in the night, whose names they knew, or pretended to know; and on pretence of their having kill'd some of their relations in the same way, determin'd to lay them to sleep; accordingly they fired, and kill'd one dead, and wounded the other two, one of them mortally. The name of the Indian kill'd was Sarony Harry, and those wounded are the captains Job and Andrew. Upon complaint made to Mr. Justice Denny, by the squaw of the murdered Indian, he issued out a warrant for apprehending the murderers; five of whom were taken and committed to gaol, but the head of the gang was not taken when the express came away, which was the 7th instant. [Since taken.]

Philadelphia, January 9.

Extract of a Letter from Bridge Town, in Barbados, dated November 7, 1740.

"On the 3d instant arrived the Hornet sloop of war from London, with dispatches for the immediate evacuation of Tobago. Our Commodore is to sail this evening to settle that affair with the general of Martinico. On his return, which we imagine will be in a fortnight, the Hornet is to sail for England, with an account of what is done therein. 'Tis reported that the duke of Bedford has wrote to our governor, that he expects soon to send him orders for the evacuation of all the other islands; viz. St. Lucia, St. Vincent's, Dominico, &c. It is not known what power or orders our governor may have, should the French not readily comply; but they may depend upon it, he will execute most punctually the orders he has, or may receive."

This morning, about one o'clock, a fire broke out in the malt house of Mr. Preserve Brown, junior, in the upper end of Second street; which entirely consumed the same, together with his dwelling house and brew-house.

ANNAPOLIS.

Last Week died at Elk Ridge Col. Henry Ridgely, who was formerly Chief Justice of this County for several Years.

Some few Days ago, as a Man in Talbot County was hammering the Flint of a loaded Gun, she went off, and shot an elderly Man, who was near him, in one of his Thighs, with seven Swan Shot, in a terrible Manner; tho' 'twas thought he would recover. The wounded Man was a Soldier under the late glorious King William, at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690; and was sent in here for joining with the Rebel Army in 1745.

We hear from Cæcil County, that the Servant Man (formerly mentioned in this Paper) for the Murder of his Master, has been tried and condemned; but the Woman (his Mistress) is acquitted.
